FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New Website Launches Today for the HSI Family of Brands – HSI.com

February 24, 2010 – Eugene, OR – Health & Safety Institute is pleased to announce the launch of our new website: HSI.com

The new HSI.com brings together ASHI, MEDIC First Aid, 24-7 EMS, and 24-7 Fire into one website and provides a centralized resource for the HSI family of brands.

Showcasing the new look and feel, brand design, and logos for each of the brands, HSI.com provides a cohesive overview of the breadth of the Health & Safety Institute offerings.

“HSI.com represents a significant step in the branding strategy for HSI,” said Jon Caplan, Vice President of Marketing for Health & Safety Institute. “We are creating a single portal to provide a wealth of information to the emergency care industry.”

Instructors and Training Center directors will benefit from significant enhancements such as the addition of our Quality Assurance center which serves as a hub for regulatory approvals and information; a Training Resources section, with materials and tools to make teaching and administering classes easier and more efficient; and a News and Events section with the latest industry and HSI news stories. Major revisions to the online store include improved navigation, high-resolution images, and detailed product descriptions, that will help enhance the HSI online shopping experience.

Exclusive to HSI Instructors and Training Centers is the new HSI Rewards program, a unique opportunity that hosts benefits, perks, and trendsetting tools to enhance and grow their businesses.

As HSI.com continues to grow and evolve, additional features will be introduced to benefit Instructors, Training Centers, corporations, and students alike.
